

A longtime manager at Shell Scotford is the new chairman of Northeast Capital Industrial Association.

Peter St. George, general manager of Shell's Upgrader east of Fort Saskatchewan, will helm NCI's executive committee for 2010/2011.

St. George is a 28-year Shell employee who's been the Scotford GM since 2004, and also held leadership roles at the Scotford Refinery and Chemicals plant from 1990 to 1998. For six years in between, he was the GM at Shell's Sarnia Refinery, where he also served as the chair of the Sarnia-Lambton Environmental Association.

A resident of Sherwood Park, St. George has two adult children attending university, and calls competitive slow-pitch as one of his passions away from work.

NCIA is a not-for-profit association representing industry located in Alberta's Industrial Heartland which include the municipalities of Strathcona County, Sturgeon County, the City of Fort Saskatchewan and Lamont County. Priorities for the coming two years include working with Alberta Environment on a cumulative effects framework; implementing the Regional Noise Management Plan; completing the third phase of the Regional Groundwater Quality Project; and working with Fort Air Partnership on a regional air monitoring network.
